A Year in Review

2015 was an exceptional year for The Career Center. As the delivery of comprehensive career services continued, the year marked an increase in student and employer engagement in all Career Center programs and services and the implementation of new initiatives and collaborations with academic partners supporting the university’s drive to preeminence.

The successful embedded Career Liaison model, recommended by the Graduate Success Committee, continued to be a priority. By restructuring liaison roles and reassigning current staff, Career Liaisons expanded career support to all students in the colleges where they served, including the graduate population. Every major in the following colleges is served by an embedded Career Liaison: College of Arts and Sciences, College of Communication and Information, College of Criminology and Criminal Justice, College of Engineering, and College of Social Sciences and Public Policy. With the receipt of additional preeminence funding, a new embedded liaison will serve students in the College of Business beginning in January.

Career Center programs continued to showcase students’ accomplishments and employability skills. The Garnet and Gold Scholar Society grew tremendously, recognizing students for their engagement in international experience, research, internship, leadership, and service. The inaugural FSU Student Employee of the Year Award highlighted and recognized the 8,300 student workers on campus. Both the Mock Interview Mentor and the Student Ambassador programs provided opportunities for students to develop their leadership skills while giving back to their peers through service and information sharing.

Collaborations with organizations like Apple, Google, Yelp, ESPN, City Year, Department of State, FBI, Florida Chamber of Commerce, CareerSource, and many others brought additional internship and employment opportunities to campus for FSU students. The Nole to ProfessioNole workshop series provided students with employability skills and preparation prior to attending career events, networking with employers, and participating in on-campus interviews. These workshops were hosted by Career Liaisons in partnership with employers.

Career Center technology increased opportunities for students to document and showcase their skills through the newly redesigned Career Portfolio. iPad use allowed Career Center staff to go mobile with career information and survey students and employers remotely. FOCUS 2, a new computer assisted guidance program, was implemented, providing students with access to career information as it relates to their FSU major.

Partnerships with campus colleagues, both at FSU main campus and at the Panama City campus, remained a top priority. The Career Center, with support from Undergraduate Studies, became the coordinator of Pre-Law advisor training and Pre-Law advising. In addition, the new Undergraduate Academic Program guide now provides career information to prospective and current students as it relates to their career and major interests. These are just some of the many successful collaborations Career Center staff engaged in last year.

The Career Center once again hosted national and international visitors, including staff from universities in Uganda, Oklahoma, Virginia, and Florida, high school guidance counselors from Florida, and employers from Turkey, The Washington Center, and Nielsen to name a few.

Staff contributed to the profession through scholarly work, including publications in the Journal of Career Assessment, NACE Journal, and the Career Development Quarterly. Staff participated in numerous presentations at professional organizations such as the American College Personnel Association, Cooperative Education & Internship Association, Florida Association of Colleges and Employers Conference, National Association of Student Personnel Administration, National Career Development Association, and the Southern Association of Colleges and Employers.

2015 was an exceptional year, and 2016 holds even greater opportunities for The Career Center to help prepare students for career success.
